THE HIGH HISTORY OF IMPILTUR

by George Krashos with Ed Greenwood, Eric Boyd & Steven Schend

For the scribes of Candlekeep

This work stands as testament to their interest, inspiration, encouragement and love of the Realms.

The history of Impiltur and its four great dynasties spans more than an age. Born in the shadow of the demon-tainted realm of Narfell, the kingdom owes its roots to the continual human diaspora that was a feature of the Chondathan race. The melding of Chondathan and Nar cultures that followed secured the solid foundation that would see our kingdom dominate the Easting Reach and nurture the founding of such kingdoms as Milvarn, Velprin, Aglarond and Damara.

Beset by a myriad of foes, most notably the dark legacy of fiends left behind after the fall of Narfell, the men and women of Impiltur have braved and tamed this land, and in so doing have endured Talona's dire regard, the depredations of the orcs and the scourge of the hobgoblins.

Now with the crowning of a new king, Impiltur must wake from its somnolence and prepare itself to once again seize the mantle of greatness that many had considered lost to it forever. A golden age looms on the horizon, for as surely as the sun rises of a morn, so too must Impiltur's glorious history be made and remade anew as the seasons turn and heroes stand tall.

Relamphras, Royal Sage of Impiltur The Regency Annals Year of the Lightning Storms (1374 DR)

- The Foehammer has blessed us on this day of blades, and while we have bathed in scarlet, we now bask in glory. Our lands increase and the bards sing of our deeds. Verily this is a day of triumph for the line of Inrath!
- Verily sire. But this day is not yet done and as the Moonmaiden relents, will be swiftly followed by another.

King Meldath "the Magnificant" conversing with Duke Harnaeth Durlarven Year of the Thousand Enemies (443 DR)

The High History of Impiltur

-9750	The Riildath (Modern: Rawlinswood and Forest of Lethyr) is settled by moon and gold elves of Shantel Othreier fleeing the persecution of the Vyshaan of Aryvandaar.
-6850	Establishment of the first settlements of Lethyr. <sup>1</sup> The moon elves of the Yuirwood travel to the forest of Saerdath (Modern: Grey Forest), and establish the realm of Larlotha. <sup>2</sup>
-2550	Ulutiu, a minor sea deity, exiles himself to the Astral Plane. His ice necklace sinks causing the formation of the Great Glacier. <sup>3</sup>
-2497	Dwarves of Dareth led by Ulnorn Emberaxe trek south seeking to reclaim the lost delves of Sarphil.
-2488	Ulnorn establishes the dwarven realm of Felimar in the mountain range they name Thorordmorn (Modern: Earthspur Mountains).
-2475	The Great Glacier continues to grow, expanding south to cover the lands that will eventually be known as Vaasa and Damara. <sup>4</sup>
-2465	The elves of Lethyr use High Magic to stop the spread of the Great Glacier southward and to regulate temperatures, thereby preserving their forest lands. <sup>5</sup>
-2460	The Nar human tribes and the hobgoblins of the northern mountains and tundra, pushed south by the expansion of the Great Glacier, come into conflict with each other and the elves of Lethyr. <sup>6</sup>
-2457	The Nar defeat the hobgoblins in battle and force them west and south into the uninhabited lands of Caerthiilor where the hobgoblins establish the realm of c2440	Haekrukkha. The Nar humans settle the plains on the northern fringes of the Riildath. The hobgoblins of Haekrukkha raid the forests of Larlotha for the first time, beginning over a century of skirmishes, attacks and invasions between the two realms.
-2336	The dwarves of Felimar begin construction of the great underground city of Halrunedar (Modern: Earthfast).
-2305	The city of Halrunedar is completed this year.
-2287	In response to forest fires lit by the hobgoblins of Haekrukkha, the elves of Larlotha begin their final, genocidal war against the humanoids.
-2284	The dwarves of Felimar ally with the moon elves of Larlotha against the hobgoblins.
-2281	The hobgoblins of Haekrukkha are defeated and their realm is shattered by the combined forces of the dwarves and moon elves. The elves of Larlotha, led by their warrior-queen Eldratha, suffer grievously in the final battles losing almost a whole generation of young elves in the fighting. The few surviving hobgoblins flee to the sanctuary of the Giantspire Mountains.
-1335	The moon elves of Larlotha begin a Retreat to Cormanthyr with the marriage of their ruler and queen Ildranna "Starflowers" to Coronal Miirphys of that realm. Within fifty winters only small pockets of elves reside within the Saerdath. <sup>7</sup>
-1068	The Scattering of the Tusks: Defeated by the forces of Mulhorand, the surviving gray orcs summoned during the Orcgate Wars flee northward into surrounding lands, coming into conflict with the elves of Lethyr. Felling trees and dying by the thousands under a storm of elvish arrows, the orcs construct crude boats and cross the Easting Reach.
-1050	Fall of Felimar to a great horde of orcs led by their fearsome four-armed chieftain Namrane. Halrunedar survives the onslaught and many fleeing dwarves seek the sanctuary of its gates.
-744	The orc shaman Vas "the Redeye" unites the orcs and establishes the realm of Vastar (Modern: The Vast).
-722	The orcs of Vastar overwhelm the elven city of Yrlaphon. The survivors are lead to safety by Lady Oluevaera Estelda after Lord Rhalffros Ilnatar is slain in the fighting. <sup>8</sup>
-255	Year of Furious Waves Jhaamdath is destroyed by elven High Magic and a tide of migration commences to the lands of the Inner Sea. <sup>9</sup>
-160	Year of the Stone Giant The Great Conflagration: Narfell and Raumathar begin their final war – a decade-long cataclysm that involves the summoning of demon lords and an avatar of Kossuth. At its conclusion, both nations lie in ruins. <sup>10</sup>
-156	Year of the Flickering Sun Construction begins on Dun-Orthass (Modern: Citadel of Conjurers) at the command of Nentyarch Rheligaun of Narfell.

<ul> <li>Dun-Orthass is completed in the early days of this year and the den summoned there along with a host of demonic servitors.<sup>11</sup></li> <li>Year of Recompense         <ul> <li>End of the Great Conflagration with the destruction of both Narfel</li> <li>Year of Old Beginnings</li> <li>Impil Mirandor, a refugee from the former lands of Jhaamdath, esta known as Impil's Tor atop an abandoned delve of Felimar at the sit Lyrabar.<sup>13</sup></li> </ul> </li> <li>Year of Silent Screams         <ul> <li>Impil rescues the Nar clan chief Mauthok from a rampaging vrock v forging the first ties of friendship between the native Nar clansmen settlers.</li> </ul> </li> <li>Year of Ample Rewards         <ul> <li>Impil dies of natural causes and is succeeded as ruler of Impil's Tor The Nar clan chief Mauthok and his three brothers attend the funer ties with the Mirandors.</li> <li>Year of Elven Delights             <ul> <li>The now thriving settlement of Impil's Tor is re-named Lyrabar by harking back to its dwarven roots and encouraging tentative trade to xenophobic dwarves of the surrounding mountains.<sup>14</sup></li> <li>Year of Forgotten Smiles                 <ul> <li>The Nar warrior Nurith establishes the holding of Arnafel (Modern Year of Hostile Hails</li> </ul> </li> </ul> </li> </ul></li></ul>	ll and Raumathar. <sup>12</sup> ablishes a settlement e of present-day whilst out hunting, and the Chondathan by his son Ornrath. cal and reaffirm their Ornrath Mirandor,

-75 DR: Oathbound

There are few surviving examples of the Nar oral tradition of recording historical events through poems known as "sesta". A court scribe recorded the sesta known to modern sages as "The Two Chieftains" at the execution of the Nar shaman Hauthok during the reign of King Tamarth. Consigned to the pyre, Hauthok recited this part of the sesta over and over till he expired, all the while steadfastly gazing at an increasingly fearful Tamarth.

You know of the old blades who in the dawn days came to the cliffs to find a liege. Herglaun, the son of Gathar, had taken countless heads and his beard was goldwoven. Carndoon the irontongued, was graybent but hale. Long had they searched.

The tower white reached up to the sky and had stout bones. Inrath was the lord fair and he gazed out for leagues and was content at his hearth. The seas had brought him to the forests of the Annar, and he had unfurled the lion. His sight was keen.

Wisdom saw the old blades forged anew in oaths of service and ties of blood. Inrath embraced his new brothers and raised them up. The Annar stood beside him and the people sang songs of great joy in celebration. Three swords now one.

-2	Year of Gruesome Streams
	King Tamarth leads a campaign against the rebellious northern hold of Arglaun, burning its settlements and putting all of its population to the sword.
-1	Year of Shattered Relics
	King Tamarth executes Lord Felran of House Briarmoon, a noble family known to have embraced Nar ways and culture, accusing him of treason. The noble families of Briarmoon, Darthrane and Gilgauntlet openly revolt against the Crown.
0	Year of the Rising Flame
	The rebel nobles are defeated at the Battle of Cardan's Ravine and King Tamarth executes all surviving males on the battlefield and then sells their women and children into slavery.
1	Year of Sunrise
	Emendarna Gilgauntlet, last surviving scion of her house, assassinates King Tamarth and then escapes west and disappears into the Grey Forest. Tamarth's brother Loaraven succeeds him as king of Impiltur. <sup>20</sup>

2	Year of the Smiling Hag
	A virulent disease that causes his body to erupt with boils and pustules strikes down King Loaraven, causing him terrible disfigurement and great pain. Blaming a "Nar Curse" he continues Tamarth's abuses against the Nar population of the kingdom.
3	Year of the Faded Flower
	King Loaraven dies due to the lingering effects of plague and his youngest brother Belrath usurps the vacant throne. Civil war breaks out when his older brother and the kingdom's rightful ruler Fendarn returns from fighting off an orc incursion from Vastar. <sup>21</sup>
8	Year of Spellspheres
	Fendarn defeats and personally slays his brother Belrath at the Battle of Three Bridges and is crowned king of Impiltur.
10	Year of Dreams
	King Fendarn unifies his fractured realm by elevating the Nar clans of Phaelith, Durlarven and Orbil to the nobility. As the three oldest and wealthiest families of Nar stock in the kingdom, they act swiftly to defuse racial tensions between the Nar and the 11	Chondathans.
14	Year of the Unknown Beloved
	Queen Marlbara dies as a result of illness. By year's end King Fendarn has married Tirnil, sister of the head of the newly ennobled House Phaelith.
31	Year of the Garrulous Gargoyle
51	King Fendarn survives a bout of heartstop and whilst incapacitated appoints his brother-in-law Lord Loranth Phaelith as King's Sceptre (regent). Lord Phaelith comes to be known to all as "the Thronelord".
36	Year of Consuming Ice
	King Fendarn suffers yet another bout of heartstop and again appoints Lord Loranth to the office of King's Sceptre, despite the protestations of his eldest son Delrath, who considers himself ready to rule.
43	Year of Frostbrands
	King Fendarn dies of heartstop and is succeeded by Delrath. The newly crowned king seeks to "retire" his uncle Lord Phaelith to his estates and within a tenday is assassinated along with his consort Queen Narasha while riding through Lyrabar. His twin brother Delrorn succeeds him. <sup>22</sup>
47	Year of the Crystal Orb
	After refusing to marry his son Crown Prince Telrorn to Lord Phaelith's granddaughter, King Delrorn and his heir are assassinated en-route to the king's summer estate on the eastern fringes of the Grey Forest. Their deaths are attributed to "bandits" and the king's stepbrother Torlorn, the blood-nephew of "the Thronelord", is crowned king. <sup>23</sup>
55	Year of the Caustic Blood
55	King Torlorn travels to Cormyr to attend the coronation of King Imlon. He appoints his younger brother Morlorn as King's Sceptre in his absence much to the chagrin of his uncle Lord Phaelith. By year's end the two are in conflict as their respective agents and supporters secretly agitate for the removal of the other.
56	Year of the Laughing Nightmare
	Lord Phaelith openly revolts against the Crown asserting that a teenage boy named Inrath is the son of Delrath and rightful ruler of Impiltur. Disaffected nobles and outlying areas rally to the boy "king" and the kingdom once more plunges into civil war.
58	Year of the Dazzling Dolphins
	Led by Prince Morlorn and the Obarskyr mercenary company, the forces of King Torlorn defeat the army of "the Thronelord" at the Battle of Greenvale. Lord Phaelith and the purported "King Inrath" are slain in battle and their bodies paraded through the streets of Lyrabar to confirm their deaths.
68	Year of the Echoing Chasm
	King Torlorn dies as a result of a jousting accident. His son and sole heir Varanth is 70	crowned king. <sup>24</sup>
72	Year of the Climber's Rest
	Prince Morlorn, uncle to the reigning King Varanth II poisons his nephew and seizes the throne with the aid of the Obarskyr mercenary family. Queen Ilithra and the heir to the throne Crown Prince Baranth, take refuge in the Grey Forest. <sup>25</sup> the throne Grown Finnee Datantin, take refuge in the Orey Polest.

75	Year of Clinging Death
	Several clans of moon elves from Rilithar in the Sword Coast North arrive in the Grey Forest via a portal and establish the realm of Vedrymmell. They ally with the fugitive Crown Prince Baranth who in turn recognises their sovereignty over the woodlands enshrined in the Silver Arrow Pact. <sup>26</sup>
77	Year of the Quivering Mountains
	With the aid of the moon elves of Vedrymmell, Crown Prince Baranth defeats the treasonous Morlorn, "the Usurper King", at the Battle of Ilithra's Smile and is crowned king of Impiltur. The Obarskyrs are exiled from the realm. <sup>27</sup>
85	Year of the Orb Obsidious
	With the aid of the elves of Vedrymmell, the first comprehensive magical wards around the Citadel of Conjurers are established.
90	Year of the Moor Birds
	Elnar agrees to become part of the realm of Impiltur due to a culmination of circumstances, including several poor growing and fishing seasons and an upsurge in pirate activity.
116	Year of the Mortal Promise
	The Bonescourge Plague strikes the realm causing the death of Crown Prince Inrath's wife Princess Farah Croam of Westgate and the crippling of his eldest son and namesake. <sup>28</sup>
124	Year of the Biting Frost
	King Baranth dies of windchill fever and is succeeded by his eldest son who is crowned King Inrath III. <sup>29</sup>

77 DR: Broken and Banished

The newly enthroned King Baranth of Impiltur penned the following letter in his own hand to King Rhiiman "the Glorious" of Cormyr in the Year of the Quivering Mountains. It remains encased in 'dragon glass' (magically enspelled glass of exceptional hardness) in the Royal Archives at Suzail. It is said that for centuries the Mage Royal Baerauble would make Obarskyr younglings read this missive when their royal arrogance got the better of them.

My brother Rhiiman, I send you word in time of trial and with the blood of my people fresh-spilled. My usurping uncle's head adorns the gates of the palace royal in Lyrabar. It is not a solitary adornment. With it are the heads of your first cousins Erendar and Mardast. They died a traitor's death under the axe of my Firstsword. Your uncle Vaerom and his remaining sons Randeth, Thaerind and Hadlon have fled the realm. They are declared broken and banished. It is said that your kin flee to the Dragon Kingdom where they will find succor and sanction for their deeds.

The line of Impil Mirandor rules this realm. I am rightful king of Impiltur and will suffer no menace to me and mine. As the gods are my witness, I will bestow fire and steel upon any who seek to trammel my right to rule, for I have sworn solemn oaths to defend my kingdom against any who would gainsay me. But having taken counsel, I am urged to show restraint. To that end, I seek a pact with you my brother. This pact is founded on the mutual understanding and regard that one king must have for another. I will foreswear my vengeance against the Obarskyrs and be content in their exile from my lands on condition that I receive assurance that Cormyr will not support them in fomenting rebellion across the seas.

My herald Lord Delrath Tarrik will bring me your response. If his head returns to Impiltur then I will know it is red war again. I have wrested a throne from the grasping of my own blood. This lion fears no dragons.

131	Year of the Cockatrice's Stare
	King Inrath III marries the much younger Lady Malarna Cairnstorm, who is crowned queen.
157	Year of the Resounding Call
	King Inrath III dies of natural causes and is succeeded by his eldest son who is crowned
450	King Inrath IV. <sup>30</sup>
158	Year of the Imploring Widow Encouraged by his conniving mother, the king's stepbrother Prince Doraven instigates a palace revolt that leads to King Inrath IV fleeing Lyrabar with a handful of loyal 159	retainers including his nephew Ellarath. <sup>31</sup> Year of the Lost Profit
139	The ill-fated King Inrath IV is slain by assassins loyal to Doraven, who crowns himself king of Impiltur. The sorely wounded Prince Ellarath flees into the Grey Forest where he is harboured by the elves of Vedrymmell and falls in love with the half-elf Kylarna, marrying her later in the year. <sup>32</sup>
162	Year of the Great Dwarven Gate
102	Aided by King Irbruin of Cormyr, Prince Pendarn, second-son of Inrath III and father of Ellarath, lands in Impiltur with an armed host and with the aid of the elves of Vedrymmell defeats Doraven at the Battle of Traitors' Heads, claiming the throne for himself. <sup>33</sup>
178	Year of the Jealous Spouse Ellarath, known as "the Faerie King" is crowned king of Impiltur on the death of his father. <sup>34</sup> In the wake of his coronation, he and Queen Kylarna visit the court of Vedrymmell and are slain by the moon elf noble Relavar Mornthael, an obsessed admirer of the queen. The clan archmage Taredd transforms Relavar into a human by use of the Akh Faen Tel Quess High Magic ritual and places a geas on him compelling him to assume Ellarath's guise and rule as king of Impiltur for a time, so as to redress the shame brought upon their house. The death of Queen Kylarna is explained away as a tragic accident.
196	Year of Yearning Elves
	Taredd releases Relavar Mornthael from his punishment, and the discovery of a suitably aged dead clone of King Ellarath in the royal chambers sees the crowning of his eldest 100	son Baranth as king of Impiltur. <sup>35</sup>
198	Year of the Almond Eyes
	King Baranth II is found dead in his royal chambers, apparently of natural causes, but with many suspecting treachery. His conniving brother Imindarth succeeds him but unexpectedly dies of drunken asphyxia on his coronation night and is in turn succeeded by his younger brother Tharaun. <sup>36</sup>
235	Year of Drawn Knives
200	After a failed assassination attempt, King Tharaun quells a short-lived revolt in Chessagol as it once again seeks to assert its independence.
269	Year of the Wild Roses
	Death of King Tharaun to natural causes after the longest reign of any Impilturian monarch. His son Darthorn succeeds him. <sup>37</sup>
271	Year of the Port Stormed King Darthorn succumbs to the Blacknail Plague and is succeeded by his son Toaven as king of Impiltur. <sup>38</sup>
273	Year of the Delighted Dwarves
	King Toaven brokers trade ties between fledgling Myth Drannor and the dwarves of ~	Earthfast, greatly enriching his kingdom in doing so.
311	Year of the Lupine Embrace
212	King Toaven dies of natural causes and is succeeded by his son Tarth. <sup>39</sup>
343	Year of Fraying Binds
	King Tarth dies as a result of a fall from a horse and is succeeded by his son Darthorn,
352	who is crowned King Darthorn II. <sup>40</sup> Year of the Dancing Piper
554	King Dathorn II leads the fleet of Impiltur to a crushing victory over a pirate flotilla out of Altumbel at the Battle of Splintered Prows. <sup>41</sup>
369	Year of the Maiden's Fury
- ~ -	King Darthorn II dies of heartstop and is succeeded by his son and namesake who is crowned King Darthorn III. <sup>42</sup>

374	Year of the Thoughtful Man
	Impiltur is ravaged by the Prayerbane Plague, which causes the death of Queen Shardra and Crown Prince Thoraven. In despair, King Darthorn III suicides by drowning and is succeeded by his second son Auminath who is crowned king. <sup>43</sup>
385	Year of the Lady's Gaze
	Chessagol rebels and secedes from Impiltur, led by the Shieldlords, an adventuring company out of Northkeep.
397	Year of the Swallowing Mists
	King Auminath dies in his sleep and is succeeded by his son Larath, who takes the name
	Auminath in memory of his father. <sup>44</sup>
406	Year of the Catoblepas
400
411	King Auminath II dies without issue and is succeeded by his brother Forlath. <sup>45</sup>
411	Year of the Wavering Shadow
	King Forlath is slain by four brothers of the Thornspar noble family after it is discovered that the king has dishonoured their sister. His nephew Meldath succeeds him and exiles the youths in question, but takes no further reprisals against the Thornspars. <sup>46</sup>
412	Year of the Burning Blazes
	King Meldath leads a military expedition into the Uplands, raising the ire of local inhabitants known as Hillers, who join to form a bandit army that raids into the lands of Impiltur proper.
414	Year of Omen Stars
	The Hillers are defeated at the Battle of Black Arrows and settlement of the Uplands begins in earnest.
415	Year of the Fiend's Kiss
110	King Meldath I defeats an army of minor demons and their human servitors led by the glabrezu Varkaloth "the Render" and founds the settlement of Oloth (Modern: Sarshel) at the site of his victory.
416	Year of the Striped Moon
410	•
	Nobles of House Dorntower attempt to put a bastard child of Forlath on the throne and overthrow King Meldath. The rebellion is swiftly crushed and House Dorntower is exiled from the realm.
419	Year of the Hale Blacksmiths
	Impiltur clashes with the hobgoblins of the Giantspires for the first time.
422	Year of the Murderous Mire
	King Meldath defeats an army of hobgoblins at the Battle of Erath's Storm on the banks of the River Dunthelar (Modern: Great Imphras River).
425	Year of the Argent Shafts
	King Meldath leads a swift, naval assault on the lands of Altumbel, annexing that region and adding it to the lands of Impiltur.
429	Year of the Cat's Eye
	King Meldath marches west and overthrows the Shieldlords, reclaiming the city of Chessagol for the kingdom.
431	Year of the Hearth
151	Tensions between Proeskampalar and Impiltur result in military clashes between the two realms through most of this year.
120	Year of the Bitter Root
438
	King Meldath raises an army and defeats the armed host of Proeskampalar, laying siege to that city.
440	Year of the Festering Heart
	With the aid of mercenary sailors out of Altumbel, King Meldath destroys the Proeskampalan fleet at the Battle of Blood and Salt, and the city surrenders to him a season later.
443	Year of the Thousand Enemies
	Seeking to open up lucrative overland trade routes with the Moonsea and Myth Drannor, King Meldath marches an army north from Proeskampalar into Vastar, but after initial successes is defeated in battle and badly wounded. Impiltur struggles to hold the mountain passes against the pursuing orcs.
445	Year of the Beardless Dwarf

447	Year of the Awakening Treant
	Proeskampalar and Chessagol rebel once again, slaving the Impilturian soldiery stationed in their cities and closing their gates to King Meldath II. Weakened by the unceasing battles with the orcs, he is no position to campaign against the rebels and retreats east to defensive lines along the fringes of the Grey Forest.
448	Year of the Haughty Friend King Meldath II is slain in a riding "accident" engineered by his scheming brother who succeeds him and is crowned King Tharaun II.48
471	Year of the Sundered Tower
	The death of Queen Larathae sees King Tharaun II follow soon after. His son and sole heir Sharaun succeeds him. <sup>49</sup>
512	Year of the Wyvernfall
	The orc chieftain Ulbror leads the Blackfang Horde out of Vastar and into the uplands of Impiltur by means of countless, small mountain trails over the Earthspurs. King Sharaun of Impiltur leads a vanguard north but is defeated and he and his sons are slain in battle. The dead king's son-in-law Duke Harandil Durlarven arrives with the main army, which routs the orcs at the Battle of Bloody Reeds. He is crowned king of Impiltur on the battlefield and establishes the Durlarven dynasty. <sup>50</sup>
525	Year of the Cracked Bell
	An increase in hobgoblin raids into the Uplands leads to the construction of a chain of forts dotted throughout the region.
528	Year of the Burning Sky
	King Harandil leads a military expedition north of the River Dunthelar and routs a hobgoblin army at the Battle of Firewinds.

512 DR: A Bloody Field

The following account is from the memoirs of Orn (Sir) Neldraun Relindar, heir to his house, and later in life, Swordward to King Harandil. The original manuscript is kept in magical stasis due to its age in the library of Thorngrove House, ancestral seat of the Relindars near Lyrabar and is an acknowledged royal heirloom of Impiltur.

When we came upon the battlefield where the king had fallen, Lord Durlarven personally commanded that I remain behind with the Lord Berestone, Helven of the Morninglord and what healers could be spared. We began our task of tragedy and tears and scoured the field for signs of the king and the royal regalia. Bralgath found the naked and mutilated bodies of the princes Emernath and Telrorn. Of the king and Crown Prince Suldorn there was no sign, but late in the day the king's signet ring was found on a severed orc hand, confirming our worst fears. Our tireless search failed to find the Lion Crown or the king's sword Faernthar, given to King Ellarath "the Faerie King" by the elves centuries before. As the day wore on, the parade of dead friends and comrades became unceasing and there were too many to give proper account. We came upon the corpse of the Mage Royal Morlas, pierced through with a score of arrows, the bodies of his apprentices dead around him and the ground blackened and burnt, still singing with unleashed magic. On a small hillock we found the Firstaxe Nemel, surrounded by a rampart of slain orcs. The tuskers had done him honor and left him where he had fallen, still in his golden armor and clutching the sword Arasarl. Fallen were the archpriest Torinn of Tempus; the twins Garand and Hormur found back to back; Baraun the Stout smiling up at the heavens; Kellegor "the Oldhelm" my first teacher of the blade; and most tragic of all, Arlianna of Belgates, the swordmaid of my heart. As I crouched at her side, struck dumb in my grief, good Berestone laid a hand on my shoulder and gave me words of wisdom that I will keep to the end of my days, "It is enough that you loved her. Live your days with the joy that she knew it."

537	Year of the Basilisk
	King Harandil dies of natural causes and is succeeded by his son and namesake, who is crowned King Harandil II of Impiltur. <sup>51</sup>
543	Year of the Lyre
	Lord Uthmere Dunblade of Dilpur founds the settlement of Uthmere on the western fringes of the Great Dale. King Harandil II, who sees this endeavour as an opportunity to expand his realm, supports him. <sup>52</sup>
562	Year of the Waking Feyr
	King Harandil II dies of natural causes and is succeeded by his eldest son Thorodil. <sup>53</sup>
564	Year of the Brandished Axe
	King Thorodil leads an army north to deal with hobgoblin raiders from the Giantspires, defeating their shaman chieftain Grolag "the Blackmane".
572	Year of Writhing Darkness
012	The orcish realm of Vastar falls into chaos with the death of Ologh "the Overking" at the claws of Iyrauroth the black wyrm. <sup>54</sup>
576	Year of the Sunless Passage
510	King Thorodil orders the "Grand Muster", a huge military inventory and catalogue. <sup>55</sup>
580	Year of Loose Coins
500	The orc chieftain Grimmerfang claims the throne of Vastar after defeating (and ceremonially spitting, cooking and eating) the last of his rivals, ending the warring among the orcs for a time. Orc raids into surrounding regions increase. <sup>56</sup>
588	Year of Dragons Dawning
500	King Thorodil is slain in battle against orc raiders and is succeeded by his son Bellodar who is crowned King Bellodar I of Impiltur. <sup>57</sup>
600	Year of Fire and Frost
000	A Flight of Dragons assails the lands of the Moonsea, reaching even to Impiltur and the
602	environs of the Easting Reach.
002	Year of the Glimmering Sea
	Dwarven clans of House Starforge leave their holds in the mountains north of the Moonsea after being assailed by dragons and travel west and south into the Earthspur
604	Mountains, coming into conflict with the orcs of Vastar.
004	Year of the Immured Imp King Bellodar annexes the city-state of Chessagol, once again bringing it under the
605	hegemony of Impiltur.
005	Year of Many Serpents A delegation of dwarves led by the High Old One Turbaern, travels to Myth Drannor and recruits the wizards Beldossan the Short and Alerathla "Rubytresses" Ilnatar along with a host of apprentice mages from the Irithlium to enchant a thousand "orcslayer"
606	blades for House Starforge. <sup>58</sup>
000	Year of the Kindly Lich Ving Balladar defacts habeabling raiders at the Battle of Stope Langes. The habeabling
	King Bellodar defeats hobgoblin raiders at the Battle of Stone Lances. The hobgoblins 600	are pursued back over the River Dunthelar, and the river defences are strengthened.
609	Year of Old Bones The Creat Marshi King Balladar misses on army and often processing the Easting Baseh at
	The Great March: King Bellodar raises an army and after crossing the Easting Reach at Uthmere, marches east through the Auldgloam Forest. The settlements of Phandarel, Kelgrove Gard and Aerdar are conquered as King Bellodar and his army reaches the shores of Ashanath. At year's end, he sends an expedition across the lake under the (10	command of Duke Halthos Orbil but it does not return.
610	Year of the Spellfire
	King Bellodar's expedition marches back to Impiltur, unwittingly having roused some of the slumbering legacies of ancient Narfell. He leaves behind a garrison at Uthmere led by Duke Tarrendril Tarrik.
	The gathered clans of House Starforge, led by their lord Tuir "Stonebeard", conquer the lands of the Vast, overcoming Grimmerfang and his orcs and founding Roldilar, the Realm of Glimmering Swords. <sup>59</sup>
611	Year of the Normiir
	Duke Tarrendril Tarrik accidentally releases the demon Soneillon, "the Queen of Whispers" from a demon cyst and becomes her thrall. He returns to Impiltur and turns his family toward demon worship.
	The dwarves of Roldilar begin construction on the city of Sarbreen, City of the Hammer (Modern: Raven's Bluff). <sup>60</sup>

613	Year of the Glaring Eye Duke Tarrendril Tarrik braves the terrors of the Citadel of Conjurers seeking to retrieve and use the powerful Narfelli artifact known as the shiftglass of Orthass to free the demon lord Eltab. He fails in his efforts but this task is passed down to later generations of the 616	Tarrik line. Year of the Ensorcelled Kings
010	The Boldenbar and Shattershields dwarven clans of Roldilar finish construction of the city of Sarbreen. <sup>61</sup>
626	Year of the Eagle and the Falcon
	Nobles of House Orbil attempt to seize the throne of Impiltur and assassinate King Bellodar. Their rebellion is savagely put down and they are declared outlaw and consigned to exile. King Bellodar II is crowned king of Impiltur. <sup>62</sup>
635	Year of the Soldier's Forfeit
	King Bellodar II marches on Chessagol but a huge dowry and the simpering regard of King Lamoth tempers his aggression and his heir is promised to and eventually marries Princess Elthia of that city-state. <sup>63</sup>
642	Year of the Sifting Sands
0 14	King Bellodar III is crowned king of Impiltur after the death of his father and
611	namesake. <sup>64</sup>
644	Year of the Gleaming Gates King Bellodar III establishes the King's Code, the realm's first complete and coherent system of laws.
649	Year of the Bloody Crown
	The dwarven realm of Roldilar falls to the orcs in the Battle of Deepfires and Sarbreen is abandoned. A number of dwarven clans flee south to Earthfast and the Deep Realms, while other craftsmen and non-combatants migrate to Myth Drannor. Humans remain (50	in the Vast and fight the orcs to retain their new homes. <sup>65</sup>
c. 650 661	Human settlers move into the lands of the Vast following the fall of the Roldilar. <sup>66</sup>
001	Year of the Bloody Tusk The forces of Impiltur led by Duke Hlintar Shimmercrag defeat an orc horde southeast of present-day Calaunt, giving burgeoning human settlements in the Vast the opportunity to thrive.

732 DR: The Shattered Crown

The famed Oghmanyte wandering priest, Maeranth of Nargard, a now-ruined settlement west of presentday Sarshel, was slain by the Zulkir Izarnal Kerthoon in the failed Thayan assault on the House of Many Tomes during the Year of the Lazy Scribe (1079 DR). He exists to this day as a silent phantom, known to most folk as the "Silent Watcher", ceaselessly roaming the environs of Impiltur. By the will of the Binder, the touch of the "Silent Watcher" imparts new, random memories to those who steel themselves to its cold embrace, and the clergy of the Wise God richly reward those who share those memories with them.

Sarshel stood before the fiery demon, his hand tightening on Dornavver as it almost pulled him forward, willing him to strike.

"I know you Ndulu!" Sarshel shouted, "And I shall send you back to the fire that spawned you."

In reply, Ndulu's whip flashed forth, its passage assaulting the paladin with heat and menace. Sarshel raised his shield, the hooked thongs tearing at it hungrily, while he leapt high to bring his sword down on the demon's horned visage. Ndulu shifted at the last minute so the blade only clipped his wing, scoring a deep furrow that erupted with black ichor. Bellowing in pain Ndulu fixed Sarshel with his gaze, willing his opponent to submit, but the paladin shrugged off the balor's sorcery and brought his blade up once again.

"You withstand me, mortal," Ndulu spat harshly, his voice a soul-emptying promise of death, "There are none left alive that have done so."

Sarshel stood unmoved, assessing his foe, and looking for a weakness. By all that was holy, his blow should have sent the balor howling back to the Abyss, but the demon stood before him unscathed. He glanced behind the demon and saw a gleaming circlet resting upon a basalt plinth. On a whim, Sarshel circled left toward the crown and Ndulu moved abruptly, his whip lashing out to bar the paladin's passage. Moving back a few steps, Sarshel saw the demon visibly relax and deduced that the crown was an artifact of power.

"Your reign is ended, Ndulu," the paladin stated in measured tones. "The blessed Triad has seen fit to cleanse this land of your evil. You cannot hope to prevail in this reckoning."

"Hope is the preserve of mortals. I only know strength and I have not yet decided whether to make you my slave or whether to simply drink your blood for pleasure," Ndulu snarled.

"This land has sampled enough of your pleasures, foul one," said Sarshel grimly, "It falls on me to seek redress."

With a yell, Sarshel feinted right and then charged left, knocking aside the demon's sword, and coming up to the plinth. Focusing the power of the Just God, Sarshel brought Dornavver down in a ringing blow that shattered the crown into golden shards. A breath later, Sarshel felt a lick of searing flame as Ndulu's lash cruelly scourged his backplate. Sarshel spun to see Ndulu's whip of fire retreating as the balor was inexorably drawn toward a spinning scarlet vortex that gave fleeting glimpses of the horrors of the Abyss beyond.

Ndulu struggled with all his might, his claws gouging deep into the stone floor of the chamber, but he could not resist the pull of the summoning magic. As he entered the vortex fully, the demon's crimson eyes locked with those of the steadfast Sarshel.

The demon's voice, festering with ill will and dark promise, flared suddenly in the paladin's mind and hissed, "I will have my vengeance on you and your blood, Sarshel Elethlim." Then the voice and the demon were gone and all that was left was silence.

886 DR: The Tears of Ilmater

The following excerpt is taken from Martyrs of the Broken God: A Study in Sacrifice written by Brother Unril of Keltar and published in the Year of the Immortals (1037 DR).

With his fast ended, King Beldred gathered the Ilmatari priesthood at the holy fastness at Narlath and commenced the great ritual to bring salvation to his kingdom. Leading the prayers to the One Who Endures, Beldred sought to rid his kingdom of the vile pestilence that had taken his family and devastated his people. For a day and a night Beldred and the Adorned gathered around him, chanted and prayed without respite, calling on their deity to bless the land with the Tears of the Crying God.

On the third day, with an awe-inspiring ebon tapestry of clouds formed above the kingdom, the heavens opened and the rain swept down in a torrent, washing away the foul graspings of Talona and cleansing Impiltur of the horrors of her Bloodpox Plague. The clearing skies saw King Beldred standing alone in the Circle of Aralthar, the clergy of Ilmater gazing upon him in silent reverence tinged with admiration and sorrow. He had led the ritual to the Broken God and through his personal sacrifice succored his people from utter ruin. As he sank slowly to his knees, the names of his dead children on his lips, Beldred succumbed to the virulence that he had drawn into himself so that others might live.

Gorthas slays Ugruck in personal combat and is proclaimed "Axe of Maglubiyet".
Year of the Dreamforging Gorthas is slain in raids against the Nar horsemen. The chieftain Malgrim is anointed as "Axe of Maglubiyet".
Year of Spreading Spring
The retreat of the Great Glacier leaves the lands of Narfell, Vaasa and Damara fully free of ice. Large-scale immigration begins to these lands. <sup>106</sup>
Year of the Lion's Heart
The retreat of the Great Glacier causes a greatly increased birthrate among the hobgoblins of the Giantspires as they expand their food sources.
Year of the Twilight Campaign
The rulers of Dilpur and Sarshel connive to have War Captain Embrar Heltharn of Lyrabar assassinated at the time of the Sword Council, plunging the lands of Impiltur into brief war before Greatlord Araln Eirlthaun of Hlammach brokers peace between the city-states.
Year of the Friendly Jackal
The twins Turgut and Turgur slay and eat the venerable Malgrim and are both anointed as the "Axes of Maglubiyet".
Year of Watery Graves Turgut and Turgur disappear whilst exploring the deeper caves of the Giantspires. The chieftain Aradrul is anointed as "Axe of Maglubiyet".
Year of the Dawndance War Captain Imphras Heltharn unites the city-states of Impiltur and leads them to victory over a hobgoblin horde from the Giantspire Mountains, personally slaying Aradrul in the final clash east of Lyrabar. <sup>107</sup>

1095 DR: Soargar's Legacy

The following is an excerpt from the book From Arrow to Quill: A Life's Journey in the Art of Sagecraft by the sage Amphyr the Venerable, published posthumously in the Year of the Bone Helm (1191 DR). Amphyr was a bowman in the glorious defeat of the hobgoblin horde that led to the refounding of Impiltur under the aegis of the Heltharn Dynasty. His is one of the few firsthand accounts of Imphras the Great's entry into the tower of the Archmage Soargar and what he discovered there following that great battle.

As our eyes grew accustomed to the light, details of the corridor and the chamber within emerged slowly from the mist. We saw golden coffers, statues, and magic - everywhere the glow of magic. For a moment - an eternity it seemed to the rest of us - Lord Imphras appeared to be struck dumb with amazement, and when the Archmage Velgarbrin, unable to stand the suspense any longer and trailing at the rear of the group, inquired anxiously, "What do you see?" it was all he could do to get out the words, "I see wondrous things." As we entered the chamber the loremaster Malither paced and turned slowly, pointing to and naming the treasures he recognized. Turning to a rack of swords he lightly touched each gleaming blade, and quietly recited, "Palreth ... Jhauraq "the Paragon Blade" ... Ashram ... Caercailyss "the Elftear"... Felithlil ..." and then his voice trailed off in sheer wonderment. Barolth turned to his lord and breathlessly said, "This is a trove fit for an emperor!" which prompted Imphras to walk up to a shadowed alcove where a shining crown rested on a velvet cushion. "Or a king," said Imphras quietly as he took up the Crown of Narfell and placed it upon his head. After a breath, with no prompting, all of us went down on one knee and bowed our heads to the revealed majesty of our new ruler. A king had been restored to the realm and loyal Soargar had finally delivered his legacy to the kingdom he had loved so dearly.

1097	Year of the Gleaming Crown
	Imphras the Great is crowned king of re-founded Impiltur and marries the wizard

1295 DR: The Loyal Regent

The man was old, nearing his hundredth winter, and he felt Myrkul's caress with every painful breath he drew. Shifting uncomfortably, he gazed out of the window at the four ships moored in the harbour below. They all flew the blazon of his realm proudly, but in truth it was a defiant, hollow image. The crossed sword and wand on a dun field was now a blazon without meaning, for the realm of Impiltur had fallen on dark times as war and rebellion raged throughout the kingdom.

"A kingdom with a useless old, graybeard as regent," said the old man ruefully to the tapestry-laden wall before him. The voice, when it came, made him start and with an effort, rise out of his chair.

"Not so useless, good Kuskur. You judge yourself harshly for one who has been betrayed and blinded by love."

Kuskur looked down from craggy brows at the slight, raven-tressed woman who had silently entered the room. Regaining his composure, he slowly bent on one knee, his left arm tucked behind his back, his right hand moving with a flourish in the fashion of Inner Sea courtiers since the raising of the Standing Stone.

"My fondest greetings, your royal highness. It gives me great pleasure to see you again. I thank you for this audience and Impiltur thanks you for the courtesies you have extended to ..." Kuskur began hoarsely, but halted in confusion as he felt sharp knuckles rap the top of his head.

"Oh, have end with the flowery phrases, Kuskur. You were never so formal with my mother Thara and I want you to be at ease in my presence. Queen of Aglarond I may be, but I am also the "Little Illi" you used to allow a sip of sunfire liqueur when her mother wasn't looking! Up with you and let us sit and talk."

Kuskur gave the queen of Aglarond a measured glance as he resumed his seat. Queen Ilione had grown into a strong and confident woman and more importantly, a loyal and steadfast friend of Impiltur. It was that friendship that had brought Kuskur, young King Rilimbrar, and a scattering of loyal nobles, courtiers and royal guards to Velprintalar.

"I have spoken at length with King Rilimbrar and he has apprised me of what has befallen his kingdom. He is young and although of a different temper to his father, he is a proud scion of the Heltharn line," Ilione announced. "He seeks aid to win back his throne."

"Your royal highness ..." Kuskur started, but was once more forced into silence, this time by the queen's upraised palm.

"I cannot give Impiltur what it seeks. Your kingdom will not be reclaimed by Aglarondan swords," Ilione stated flatly. "We shall provide you with sanctuary but I fear that this will be far short of what you seek or need."

Kuskur closed his eyes, the disappointment making his mouth twist in a grimace that he only mastered with visible effort. The sea voyage from Lyrabar had been sufficiently long to allow him to face his demons and give him the courage to sacrifice all that he had to return his nephew to the throne.

"Your response is not surprising, your royal highness, and it is one that I understand and respect. A usurper of my blood sits on Impiltur's throne, and the blame for that rests with me. To absolve myself, I seek a boon from the Queen of Aglarond. For the affection your mother bore me, I beseech you to grant it," Kuskur stated quietly.

"If it is within my power to grant, noble Kuskur, it shall be as you ask," replied Queen Ilione as she raised a surprised finger to wipe away the sudden tear that ran down the old man's cheek. Kuskur looked deep into her eyes and said in a choked whisper, "I understand that you have an apprentice. Fetch her to me."

1244	Year of the Defiant Keep Lord Elphras, brother to the reigning King Lashilmbrar, travels to the Great Dale and raises a castle near the Great Barrow; the castle is mysteriously abandoned soon thereafter, and he is not heard of again. <sup>123</sup>
1253	Year of Beckoning Death

1204	Rilimbrar, younger son of King Lashilmbrar and Queen Thelmara, is born. <sup>126</sup>
1294	Year of the Deep Moon
	The treasonous Prince Thaum of Telflamm engineers the assassination of King Lashilmbrar, Queen Thelmara and Crown Prince Imphras. His father Kuskur, brother to Lashilmbrar, is appointed regent until Rilimbrar comes of age and can be formally crowned king of the realm. <sup>127</sup>
1295	Year of the Ormserpent Thaum gathers a mercenary army and sails across the Easting Reach to sack Sarshel and march on Filur, seizing the throne of Impiltur. Prince-Regent Kuskur and King Rilimbrar flee to Aglarond where they seek the aid of Queen Ilione. Her apprentice, known to all as the Simbul, travels to Impiltur and slays Thaum. Thaum's son Imphras declares himself King Imphras IV. <sup>128</sup>
1296	Year of the Black Hound
	King Rilimbrar is restored to the throne of Impiltur and Prince-Regent Kuskur elects to go into self-imposed exile in Aglarond. Thaum's son Imphras is placed under house arrest. <sup>129</sup>
1297	Year of the Singing Skull
	King Rilimbrar marries Ilbritha Eirlthaun. <sup>130</sup>
1317	Year of the Wandering Wyrm
1011	The Great Plague of the Inner Sea, also known as the Dragon Plague, begins ravaging the coastal lands of Impiltur, Thesk and the Aglarondan peninsula. <sup>131</sup>
1323	Year of Dreamwebs
1525	The Dragon Plague is declared over. <sup>132</sup>
1336	Year of the Highmantle
1550	King Rilimbrar has his daughter Princess Sambryl wed her second cousin Imphras, though the marriage is never consummated. Imphras IV, though considered a traitor and confined to the royal tower at Filur, is officially recognised as Crown Prince of the realm. <sup>133</sup>
1220	Year of the Wanderer
1338
	King Rilimbrar, Queen Ilbritha, and Crown Prince Imphras die in a mysterious fire in Filur. The infant Prince Soarimbrar the Younger is crowned king and Sambryl is 1210	appointed Queen-Regent. The royal court is moved to Lyrabar. <sup>134</sup>
1340	Year of the Lion
	Queen-Regent Sambryl decrees a new merchant guild or "laern" for the Uplands region of the realm.
1351	Year of the Crown
	King Soarimbrar the Younger and his entire retinue are slain at the hands of unknown assassins. His infant nephew Imphras V succeeds him and Sambryl remains Queen-Regent. <sup>135</sup>
1363	Year of the Wyvern
	King Imphras V dies of a wasting sickness before he can properly claim the throne of Impiltur. His younger brother Imbrar II succeeds him and as before, Sambryl remains Queen-Regent of the realm. <sup>136</sup>
1364	Year of the Wave
	Lord Uthrain of Uthmere is killed in a hunting accident and succeeded by his son Uthlain. Adventurers soon discover that servants of the Shadowmasters of Telflamm, who seek to destabilize Uthmere, have perpetrated the death. <sup>137</sup>
1374	Year of Lightning Storms
	King Imbrar II comes of age, takes up the Crown of Narfell and is formally crowned king of Impiltur. The Lords of Imphras II are dissolved and the former Queen-Regent Sambryl retires to Filur.
